FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1925

That the Chester County Fair this year was not a financial success is regretted by all, but the weather went strongly against the gate receipts and although the management carried rain insurance it failed enough to keep people away and yet not enough to be able to collect the insurance.

While the fair was not successful financially it was a successful success insofar as exhibits were concerned. The agricultural exhibits this year were undoubtedly the best in the history of the fair and the credit for this excellent showing is due the untiring efforts of Secretary Cushman and County Agent Sabers, both of whom spent many hours in getting the exhibits. The farmers of the county are also due a word of praise in co-operating with these two gentlemen and they have clearly demonstrated that the soil of Chester county is well adapted to diversification and that it is possible and practical for the farmer here to have his "hog and hominy" at home.

NET WEDNESDAY.

Henry Adair Chapter Had Interesting Meeting Last Wednesday at home of Mrs. J. Hal McLeure—Much Business Attended to.

Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Hal McLeure was hostess to the Henry Adair Chapter, D. A. R. This being the last meeting before the State Conference, there was much business to be attended to. Among these, the annual report, prepared for Conference was read and proved most gratifying, showing that all state and National obligations had been promptly met and that most interesting historical and social programs had been held each month. The most outstanding feature of the year's work was the number of new members added to the roll, with a number of papers out in preparation for membership.

The historical program for this meeting, was a paper on the "Old Exchange" by Mrs. Ina Hemphill. Mrs. Hemphill had just returned from Charleston where she visited the "Old Exchange" expressly to get material for this meeting. Another paper was of a brief sketch of the twenty-five years of the Chapter's existence, as gathered from old minutes and shown ed that the Chapter was organized in 1900, with Mrs. J. J. Stringfellow regent, who remained so until her death in January, 1923. The name for the Chapter was suggested by Mrs. G. W. Gage because "Mary Adair" was the ancestor of several of the chapter members.

It was interesting to note that in this resume that in 1911 Mary Adair entertained the State Conference, the meetings were held in the Opera House and the lunches were to be served in the Army, but there was no water in the Army, so accommodations were not to the City Council asking that water be put in, as Council had water put in at the request of and for the convenience of Mary Adair Chapter.

REPORT BIG BUSINESS

Nash Automobile Manufacturers Report Wonderful Business in their Cars—Advertisement in this issue of The News.

The Nash Motors Company, in closing their books for September, report a volume of business greater by 83 per cent than that of September 1924.

"The past month," says E. H. McCarty, General Sales Manager, "was the thirteenth consecutive month to show a substantially material gain over the corresponding period of the previous year."

The number of cars shipped in September was 10,114. This is but 361 cars less than the August total of 10,475—and August rolled up the biggest monthly volume in all Nash history. September, however, having one less working day than August, actually established itself at the peak of greatest daily production since our company was founded.

"During August and September there were produced and sold 20,989 Nash cars. This constituted over 30 per cent of our entire business for the year 1924. It will be noted in this advertisement appearing in this issue that the increase in business in June was 1.2 per cent. This small increase was due to the fact that the manufacturers arbitrarily halted to bring new models in to production."

TELLS THE NEGRO TO STAY AT HOME

Many Get In Trouble In State of the North And Don't Understand Conditions.

Says the Southern Planter Magazine: Of 1,211 prisoners received at the Ohio State Penitentiary during the year ended June 30, 1925, 242 were southern negroes. Kentucky led with 83, Tennessee, followed with 45 and Alabama and Georgia each gave 41.

In ordinary circumstances and at home these negroes would have been extremely law-abiding. But Director Harper says in discussing the report of the warden: "These negroes come north with the expectation of finding plenty of easy work at large pay; and when they are unable to secure this, they are easily led into committing some crime."

Furthermore, the same official remarks: "Ohio police are more lenient than those of the South and their alertness probably leads to arrests which the man might escape in the southern home."

The Ohio governor is certainly right when he attributes the large number of offenders sent to him for incarceration as due to the unanticipated migration of negroes from the places where they were known to places that regarded them with suspicion.

It is to be questioned whether he is equally right in his conclusion regarding the relative efficiency of the police in the South and in Ohio.

We doubt the superior efficiency of the Ohio guardians of the law in the South. Negroes charged with crime have been extended to offenders. It is highly probable that many of the negroes sent to the Ohio penitentiary would, if their offences had been committed in the South have received lenient sentences.

It is well within reason to believe that some of them would have been escaped. Larger wages and greater freedom are excellent baits to lure men but the real friends of the southern negroes, whether white or their own race or white men, should think twice before they advocate a movement toward the north. The highly trained, efficient, intelligent negro can take care of himself and his interests no matter where he goes; but it is to be doubted if even the best equipped man find much beyond the Potomac except the mythical social equality they cannot find at home; and so far as the ignorant are concerned it is little short of crime to induce them to leave an environment which insures a certain degree of sympathetic understanding and goes to a certain extent to protect them for their transgressions but holds them to the same rigid responsibility that it demands of the most cultivated.

NEW MOUNTAIN RESORT PLANNED

Hogback Range Will Be Developed by Spartanburg Men.

Spartanburg, Nov. 3.—What is expected to be one of the greatest real estate developments launched in the Carolina mountains has just been announced by Messrs. A. M. Law & Co., of Spartanburg, who were instrumental in consummating the transaction in perfecting the plan known as Carolina Mountains, Inc., with a capitalization of one million dollars. The land acquired totals seventy thousand acres and the area comprises the section lying west of Tryon, N. C., and about half way between the Appalachian, or Spartanburg highway, and the Piedmont, or Greenville highway, to the mountain, and known as the Hogback Mountain range, which includes Brunsy Ridge, Rocky Spur, Rich, Bryson, and Pine. Hog Head, Round Rock and Hogback mountains all ranging in altitude from 2,500 to 3,200 feet above sea level. This has long been conceded to be one of the most beautiful sections of all the mountain districts of the two Carolinas and lies in that natural state of ruggedness and beauty characteristic of virgin forests. The North Carolina and its tributaries rise on the property, as well as the South Piedmont river, Vaughn and home creeks, and the Middle River.

The officers of the company are: E. Child, president; G. Remick, vice president; and general manager, A. M. Law, president; C. Y. Brown, secretary and treasurer. These are all well known men of the highest business standing.

The company proposes to take it one of America's outstanding resort colonies, and in addition to the beautiful natural resources this heavily wooded forest, there is now under construction on the top of Hogback Mountain a magnificent club house built of native stone and logs, eighteen, nine golf course, ten brown, and twenty-five acre lake, several championship tennis courts, riding

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH SHOT GUN

Places Barrel Against His Breast in Battle and Shoots Through With a Stick.

Greenville, Nov. 3.—W. E. Lewis, aged 49 years, and a prosperous grocer of Belvoir township this county, committed suicide at an early hour, this morning by firing the contents of a .38-caliber revolver into his heart. Lewis' act is alleged to have been the result of drinking. It is said he had been indulging in rather heavily for several days. This morning he claimed to be indisposed and remained in his bedroom much later than usual, and when the members of the household were busy about their duties he secured his gun and sitting upright in bed placed the barrel against his breast and fired, wounding a small of his small stomach.

Further, the same official remarks: "Ohio police are more lenient than those of the South and their alertness probably leads to arrests which the man might escape in the southern home."

The Ohio governor is certainly right when he attributes the large number of offenders sent to him for incarceration as due to the unanticipated migration of negroes from the places where they were known to places that regarded them with suspicion.

It is to be questioned whether he is equally right in his conclusion regarding the relative efficiency of the police in the South and in Ohio.

We doubt the superior efficiency of the Ohio guardians of the law in the South. Negroes charged with crime have been extended to offenders. It is highly probable that many of the negroes sent to the Ohio penitentiary would, if their offences had been committed in the South have received lenient sentences.

It is well within reason to believe that some of them would have been escaped. Larger wages and greater freedom are excellent baits to lure men but the real friends of the southern negroes, whether white or their own race or white men, should think twice before they advocate a movement toward the north. The highly trained, efficient, intelligent negro can take care of himself and his interests no matter where he goes; but it is to be doubted if even the best equipped man find much beyond the Potomac except the mythical social equality they cannot find at home; and so far as the ignorant are concerned it is little short of crime to induce them to leave an environment which insures a certain degree of sympathetic understanding and goes to a certain extent to protect them for their transgressions but holds them to the same rigid responsibility that it demands of the most cultivated.

WILL INVESTIGATE TRAIN-AUTO CRASH

Georgia Authorities to Probe Collision Killing Eight.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—The Georgia Public Service Commission announced it will investigate the grade crossing train-auto crash yesterday at Nighthawk, in which five children were killed and twenty-one injured.

The question as to whether the commission has any authority to prevent interstate railroads from sidetracking box cars at points where they might obstruct the view of grade crossings has been raised by Chairman Trammell. The commission will send a representative to the scene of the tragedy.

MAN WHO USED FLAG TO WIFE WITH NEW GETS 250-DAY TERM

Los Angeles, Oct. 31.—Two hundred and fifty days in jail was the sentence given Jake Ball, cleaner and dyer, who used an American flag yesterday to wipe his shop windows. Ball pleaded ignorance of the law but the judge ruled that ignorance of such a point was worse than the desertion. Defense counsel gave notice of appeal.

Government Cotton Reports

Senator Cawley is being criticized for his attack upon the government cotton reports by very recently so few spokesmen have been found to defend the present method of forecasting the size of the cotton crop, with its error of 10 per cent, that keep the market in turmoil and do nobody any good except the speculators. It would be better to have no reports at all than reports which are as un dependable as those we are now getting.

What the speakers object to is that the earlier reports give no trustworthy indication of the probable yield. What the farmers object to is the way the reports are revised to small the price of cotton. In many cases the reports are based upon information gathered by a much larger force specially trained for the work, and would give this service a quality of trustworthiness that is now sadly lacking.

FALL PLOWING

Clemson College—Aside from the benefit to be derived from the early destruction of cotton stalks, as a means of boll weevil control, it is advisable to turn the land in this fall, or as early thereafter as possible, so that the material which entered into the makeup of the cotton plant may be utilized for future crops. But this material must be decomposed before it can be used as a fertilizer. A plant food is available, and to effect this decomposition, it is necessary that the plant residues of whatever kind present, be turned under the ground under the plow. This material may be attacked by bacteria, which feed upon such material.

This, says T. S. Baile, Acting Chief Agronomist, at the college here, is one of the benefits of the fall destruction of cotton stalks, probably second in importance only to the destruction of boll weevil food. There are other benefits of fall plowing which Mr. Baile states briefly.

1. The farmer who turns under his cotton stalks or other plant residues in the fall, thereby thoroughly breaking the land, will be much less rushed in the spring just before planting time.

2. Land may be covered much deeper in the fall than in the spring, and this permits better incorporation of the plant residues into the soil.

3. Again, deep plowing—while not advisable on moist soils in the spring—is a good practice if the land is turned before cold weather. The alternate freezing and thawing of the subsoil tends to break up the clods, and leaves the soil in a crumbly or granular state. This allows it to absorb greater quantities of the winter rainfall, which is a great benefit, and it is a great benefit to the farmer.

There are certain conditions where fall plowing may not be advisable. For instance, if the soil is very light, and there are no appreciable quantities of crop residues present, a greater loss of plant food may result than if the land is left until late winter or early spring before plowing. The soil should not be left bare, however, for a better place to grow winter cover crops cannot be found.

It should be remembered that your eye with a handkerchief fall plowing, in early destruction of cotton stalks, and the planting of winter cover crops are three farm practices which go hand in hand.

REMOVING CINDERS

What do you do for a sore eye? It all depends on what is wrong with the eye, because if it is a foreign body of some sort has entered it, there are a number of harmless things to do. It is a pity that everybody isn't taught how dangerous it is to have the eye poked at by untrained fingers. It hurts so to have things in the eye that in the hope of relief you are ready to submit to anything.

I have seen hundreds of eyes which were becoming and infected by awkward attempts at removal of a cinder. These efforts were made by well-meaning persons and usually in response to the appeal of the victim.

In every mill and factory there is somebody who is believed to possess exceptional skill in extracting cinders. You ought to examine some of these eyes afterward. The magnifying glass shows that the surface tissues have been scraped away and that an area a hundred times the size of the offending object has been denuded by the rough, even though tender, handling, and the eye is left in a bad state.

The direct injury to the eyeball is the worst of it, either. The toothpick, sharpened match, hairpin, or handkerchief corner, may be none too clean. In any event, there is frequently carried into the tissues the germs of pus production or other serious infection. The eye has been lost, but the sight destroyed, by manipulation of the eye with a handkerchief.

If you get a cinder in your eye, fill a perfectly clean glass with perfectly pure water. Bend over the glass so that the cinder is submerged in the water. Now wipe rapidly for a few minutes.

Nine times out of ten this procedure will cause the foreign body to float out. It is loosened by the winking and the water purges out the lid or of the eyeball. If this does not succeed and nobody is present who can turn the eye into a real doctor, cover it with a handkerchief and make your way to his office. If there is much pain, cold water compresses will promote comfort. Covering both eyes, because when the vision is cut off the eyes are not moving about. In this way you avoid the scraping and cutting caused by the dragging of the foreign body across the delicate eye lid covering.

You must keep from rubbing the eye. That practice is sure to be harmful. Let the doctor do all the handling, and in his way you will be given speedy relief without the added danger of infection. —Selected.

BETTER TO RAISE OWN COWS

It is very common in South Carolina to hear farmers say that they can buy cows cheaper than they can raise them. On the other hand, the best authorities on dairying generally claim it is better to raise heifers from the best of the herd to replace them, and to buy the best of the herd to replace them, and to buy the best of the herd to replace them.

THE QUICKENED MIND

The delightful old Frenchman who dies every year or so and made all America believe that it was growing better every day, day by day, just because it made up his mind to say so, was not far wrong, after all, and maybe his suggestion had something to do with it. That the world is much better now than it was last year, must be admitted as a fact when we make review of the circumstances that have developed. There are the men who, living, provided large donations to help along the cause of religion and education, science and economy; there is the large number of wealthy men who, dying, left large sums to its cause. Still others directed their benevolence to the cause of the boys and girls of the land. The past year has been created a more happy and contented world of money to divert a part of their possessions to the betterment of the world. The influence of these benefactors is just beginning to be felt. This influence will become more pronounced with the passing of time, and it stands to reason that the world of the future is destined to become infinitely better than the world of today.

Music and the arts have their patrons in the general scheme of world betterment, Theodore Roosevelt.

per died at his home in Philadelphia last week. He was a music publisher and editor of Etude. He was a successful leader in the field of music and had amassed wealth to the extent of $200,000. He had some relatives and close friends he "remembered" in his will, but the bulk of his estate went into the treasury of the organization known as the Theodore Presser Foundation. This Foundation additional scholarships will be established to aid worthy music students, this in reinforcement of the 184 scholarships already maintained in colleges by the Foundation. Presser also maintained a home for retired music teachers, and the foundations of this home have been strengthened. The mind of philanthropy has been quickened in recent days and it is the generous distribution of accumulated that is making assured a better world for tomorrow.

The world is growing better and faster, day by day. Money, long regarded as "the root of all evil," is to become a true friend. The reputation of the National Association of National Appliances. The new appliances are a promise of that. The old Frenchman gave the country much of entertainment. He first showed the seeds of good, and then came the thoughtful mood there was no doubt developed the will to do. The people laughed as they told themselves they were growing better in every way, day by day, and behold! they have begun to find that it was not all illusion. For we have better churches, better schools, better doctors, better preachers, and maybe, after a while, we may have better lawyers. Even then, the millennium will be a great way off; nevertheless, there will be much more happiness in the world. —Charlotte Observer.

MODERN ECONOMY

Somebody suggested not long ago that Anderson County ought to vote bonds right now in the sum of one million dollars, to be used in road construction, to that the farmers could find profitable employment during the coming winter. Such a plan or procedure reminds me of my Uncle John.

Somebody suggested not long ago that Anderson County ought to vote bonds right now in the sum of one million dollars, to be used in road construction, to that the farmers could find profitable employment during the coming winter. Such a plan or procedure reminds me of my Uncle John.

My Uncle John got terribly in debt in 1914. He owned a nice home that was mortgaged for $4,000. He didn't get anything much for his crop, and he couldn't see how in the world he would get through the winter without some work to do. BUT—

He thought up the idea of mortgaging his home for an additional one thousand dollars for the purpose of building another room to his home which he did not need. Some good friend loaned him this money. He then hired himself for $5 a day, and within three months he had the job done. He had a larger house, and by this method he also had employment through the winter months. Of course, he owed one thousand dollars for borrowed money that he could have done without. The man who held the first mortgage foreclosed it two years later. Uncle John is now in politics. —Gee McGee and Anderson Mail.

ATE TOO FAST

South Carolinian Took Black-Draught For Indigestion, and Says He Could Soon Eat Anything.

Baltimore, S. C.—Mr. W. B. Bonkinton, of this place, gave the following account of his use of Theodor's Black-Draught: "Just after I married I had indigestion. Working out, I got in the habit of eating fast, for which I soon paid by having a tight, bloated, and feeling after meals. This made me very uncomfortable. I would feel stupid and drowsy, didn't feel like working. I was told it was indigestion. Some one recommended Black-Draught and I took it after meals. I don't could eat anything any more."

"I was it for colds and biliousness and it will keep you at a cold and carry away the bile better and quicker than any live medicine I have ever found."

"But, in fact, too much, or faulty chewing of your food, often causes indigestion. After meals, a pinch of Black-Draught, washed down with a swallow of water, will help to bring prompt relief. Blood purifications, eruptions, a bad breath and other common symptoms of indigestion have disappeared after Black-Draught has been used for several days. —No. 164

Are You Guilty?

A farmer carrying an express package from a big mail order house was accosted by a local merchant. "Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality." The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said:

"Why didn't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."
